YACHT SEA FOX SET SAIL SATURDAY, LONG ISLAND SOUND

BODY OF MRS. ETHELWYN MARCIA SNEDDEN FOUND FLOATING IN WATER

POLICE, CIVILIAN PLANES, COAST GUARD BOATS SEARCHING FOR 6 OTHERS IN PARTY

New York, May 27.—(U.P.)—Identification of the body of a young woman at New York, Conn., spurred police, civilian planes and coast guard boats in a wide search today of Long Island Sound for the yacht Sea Fox which is believed to have foundered during a storm with at least six persons aboard.

Paul Mendenhall of New York, identified the body in a Norwalk mortuary as that of his sister, Mrs. Ethelwyn Marcia Snedden, who put out from Kyle's shipyard in New York with her husband, Donald Snedden, owner of the speedy craft, and four or five guests some time late Saturday or Sunday morning.

Those reported by the missing persons bureau here to have been aboard the craft were:

Snedden, 28, an instructor of the school of education of New York University and Mrs. Snedden.

Robert Mendenhall, 29, of the statistical bureau of Columbia University, a brother of Paul Mendenhall and Mrs. Snedden.

Florence Mendenhall, 28, his wife. Miss Doris Dewey, 29, a psychiatrist attached to the girl's service league.

Mary Coyne, 28, an instructor at the Riverside country school.

In addition, Robert Johnston, 30, a radio and night club entertainer, also was reported to have been aboard the craft by his family.

Mrs. Snedden's body was found floating in the Sound late yesterday off Collierville's Point, about a mile from Darien, Conn., by William P. Allen of Stamford, Conn., who was fishing.

The 35-foot auxiliary sloop Sea Fox had not been heard from since it put out from here Saturday, and finding of Mrs. Snedden's body immediately gave rise to the fear that her husband's craft had either foundered in the Sound or had been blown to sea by a 40-mile-an-hour wind which blew across the Sound all day Sunday and yesterday.

FALLS FROM YACHT, DROWNS IN LAKE

New Orleans, May 27.—Richard M. Ellis, prominent yachtsman and clubman, was drowned today when he fell from the yacht Otellia three miles off Spanish Fort in Lake Pontchartrain.

Ellis was one of 17 guests aboard the yacht which is owned by William S. Penick. The yacht, manned by a crew of eight, had been cruising in the lake since dinner.

Shortly after midnight Ellis fell from the rail of the upper deck. The guests and crew spent several hours searching for the body before reporting to police.

Norwalk, Conn., May 27.—(U.P.)—Search of Long Island Sound for trace of the yacht Sea Fox of New York has been rewarded by recovery of the bodies of two women, one identified early today as the wife of the owner, Mrs. Ethelwyn Marcia Snedden, and the other found today thought to be that of her sister-in-law, Florence Mendenhall, theater guild actress.

The body was found by the occupants of the yacht Jo-Lo of Flushing, N. Y., nearly 24 hours after a fisherman recovered Mrs. Snedden's body.

Captain Ralph Spaulding of the Jo-Lo, who had taken E. V. Peters and his family, of Flushing, on a long cruise, sighted the second body and took it in tow. He encountered a coast guard patrol boat, which advised him to bring the body here.

Policemen said the body resembles photographs of the actress. The only other woman believed aboard the Sea Fox when it left New York for a week-end cruise was Miss Doris Dewey, New York social worker.

FRENCH CRISIS IS AVERTED, BRIAND HOLDING OFFICE

BRIAND TO CONTINUE IN PORT-FOLIO OF FOREIGN MINISTER

FURTHER INTERPELLATIONS OF
FOREIGN POLICY REFUSED
UNTIL AFTER JUNE 13

By RALPH HEINZEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, May 27.—(U.P.)—A crisis within the administration headed by Premier Pierre Laval was averted today when Aristide Briand decided to remain as foreign minister.

Formal announcement of Briand's consent to withdraw his resignation was made after a lengthy cabinet session. The ministers gathered early and argued with Briand for more than three hours before he was convinced that it was to the best interests of the government that he remain in the ministry.

Briand's successes at Geneva, particularly in connection with the council of the League of Nations' decision to send the proposed Austro-German customs accord to The Hague court for an advisory opinion, were lauded.

The cabinet decided to refuse further parliamentary interpellations on the government's foreign policy until after the installation of President-elect Paul Doumer on June 13. The Laval ministry automatically resigns at that time, as a matter of form.

Briand accepted the cabinet members' assurance that the parliamentary opposition manifested at the presidential elections at Versailles has been wiped out by his energetic opposition to the Austro-German "economic Anschluss" at Geneva.

It was understood that Briand's sole grounds for resignation had been based on the impression that the opposition to him shown at Versailles endangered the cabinet in its dealings with the chamber of deputies.

Briand explained his accomplishments at Geneva, after which the cabinet unanimously approved his report and the premier in the name of the government, asked him to continue as minister of foreign affairs.

Briand accepted and agreed to appear before the chamber of deputies whenever the government may decide to defend the results of the Geneva gathering.

2 Men Apparently Brothers Hold Up State Bank of Hardwick at Noon and Steal $2,700

THIRD MAN DROVE CAR OF THE BANDITS

CASHIER AND ASSISTANT CASHIER ORDERED INTO THE VAULT

DUST BLOWING IN STREET OBSCURES LICENSE NUMBER OF CAR

Hardwick, Minn., May 27.—(U.P.)—Two men, apparently brothers, held up the State Bank of Hardwick at noon time today.

Preliminary check by bank officials showed that $2,700 had been taken by the bandits. The cashier said that he believed a third man had driven the bandit's automobile.

The men were described as roughly dressed and looking very much alike, as if they were related.

The shorter of the two bandits was the first to enter the bank. He approached Cashier E. A. Grunklee at his cage and asked for 25 cents in pennies. Grunklee counted out the pennies and the bandit put them in his coat pocket. When the other bandit entered the bank, the shorter man drew a revolver and ordered Grunklee to lie on the floor.

The second bandit ran behind the cage and ordered Grunklee and Miss Laura Anderson, assistant cashier, into the vault. From the till and the vault, the pair picked up $2,700 which they placed in a small gunny sack.

"They constantly threatened to blow our brains out if we didn't hurry," Grunklee said. "They were the hardest looking men I've ever seen."

As soon as the bandits left the bank, Grunklee and Miss Anderson rushed out of the bank.

"The bandit car was less than half block away," Grunklee said. "Dust was blowing and I didn't get the license number."

Several men saw the bandit car speed through the downtown streets. The bandits were dressed alike and both carried small revolvers.

The loss was covered by insurance, Grunklee said.

"The shorter bandit said if we rang any burglar alarms, he would kill us both before being captured," Grunklee said.

Grunklee and other townsmen commandeered an automobile and followed the road the bandits were seen to have escaped on as far as Leota. Sheriff Kitterman took up the bandit trail there.

Leota, Minn., May 27.—Sheriff's deputies and vigilantes trailed bandits who held up the State Bank of Hardwick today as county authorities of southwestern Minnesota blockaded roads.

Picking up the bandits' trail at Leota, where the men were seen as they speeded through town toward Slayton, Sheriff F. F. Kitterman and deputies were believed to be only a short distance behind the bandits.

Boston, May 27.—(U.P.)—Sailor George Haley of the U. S. S. Wainwright was escorting a girl friend across Boston Common in the early-morning hours when a civilian bystander passed a "wise-crack."

Sailor Haley stopped suddenly, glared at the loiterer, and asked for confirmation of what he thought he had heard. The civilian obligingly repeated the remark and a fist fight ensued.

No novice at the art of fistfuffs, Sailor Haley held his own temporarily. But when his adversary resorted to biting and kicking tactics, the gob found himself in a sorry plight.

It was at this stage that the crowd watching the battle heard a grinding of brakes and saw an expensive coupe stop at a nearby curb. From the car hopped a middle-sized fellow wearing a blue uniform and a cap resplendent with gold lace. He rushed to the scene and addressed Sailor Haley:

"What's up? Can I help you, boy?"

Sailor Haley stopped fighting and stared at the stranger with astonishment. He said nothing but took his girl friends by the arm and hurried away. His opponent likewise vanished.

Patrolman James V. Stanton, arriving a few moments later, recognized the mediator as his old friend, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

"I stepped in to see that the navy didn't take a licking," the explorer smilingly explained.

HEAVY RAINS IN EASTERN SOUTH DAKOTA TODAY

6.5 INCHES REPORTED FALLING
IN SOME PLACES, DIRT ROADS
ALMOST IMPASSABLE

MARVIN, NEAR MILBANK, RE-PORTS CLOUDBURST FLOOD-ING STREETS

Milbank, S. D., May 27.—(U.P.)—The first hard rain of the season in eastern South Dakota today flooded basements and made dirt roads almost impassable. More rain was expected after 6.5 inches had fallen in some places.

Marvin, near Milbank, reported a cloudburst which flooded streets and forced residents to take to the second stories of their homes in a few of the lower sections. They were rescued in rowboats from their homes along the Whetstone river.

Rescues in boats also were reported at Watertown where the Sioux river overflowed its banks. Only Monday of this week, it was a lazy stream hardly half filling its river bed but with the rains last night it overflowed and forced nearby inhabitants to seek shelter and refuge elsewhere.

More than three inches of rain fell at Milbank within a half hour's time. Communication lines were impaired and railroad trains and buses were reported delayed beyond their scheduled times.

Several washouts were reported by railroads going through this section. Six miles north of Watertown, the Great Northern track was washed out while near Goodwin, the Northwestern reported a washout. Both lines said that men had been dispatched to fix the tracks and prevent any further delays to their trains.

It was the first rain in two weeks for the northern section of South Dakota. The rainfall varied from 6.5 inches at Watertown to less than an inch at Aberdeen.

Summer temperatures in the high 80's and 90's were reported from the section where the rain storm broke.

Brainerd, Minn., May 27.—An electrical and rain storm yesterday afternoon put out lights here, and it was nearly four hours before light and power was generally resumed. Repairs were made as quickly as possible.

Other northern Minnesota points reported damage to light and communication lines.

At Moorhead, a heavy wind accompanied the wind and rain storm, doing minor damage to wires. Heavy rains also were reported at Crookston.

St. Paul, May 27.—The rain storm which struck other sections of Minnesota did not extend as far south as the Twin Cities, the weather bureau reported today. The temperature yesterday was within three degrees of this year's high. At 3 P. M., it was 87.

PREVIOUS FREE BALLOON ALTITUDE OF 35,424 FEET MADE BY BERSON AND SUERING, 1901

OXYGEN SUPPLY FOR ONLY TEN HOURS; BALLOON NOW FLIES AIMLESSLY

Editorial Note: It is believed that when the balloon of Prof. Piccard finally lands that it will be found to contain the bodies of the courageous scientist and his aide. His 10-mile ascent met with difficulties he could not cope with and both were probably suffocated and frozen.

With no one to guide the descending balloon, it may be wrecked in the mountains and all the valuable data gained will be lost. Like Andre Piccard would have died happy if he knew his memoranda were preserved.

Partenkirchen, Bavaria, May 27.—(U.P.)—Prof. Auguste Piccard's balloon was sighted at 5 P. M. today at an altitude of 4,000 meters (13,120 feet) and remaining in a stationary position.

Aeronautic authorities were astonished that Prof. Piccard had not pulled the rip cord which would release the gas in the balloon bag and cause descent, and they expressed fear that he and his companion, Charles Kipfer, were dead.

The balloon was still visible at 7:30 P. M. Its altitude at that time was estimated at between 5,000 and 6,000 meters (16,400 feet to 19,680 feet). It was moving slowly to the southward, apparently out of control and was rising and descending erratically.

Augsburg, Bavaria, May 27.—Two scientists who fought to penetrate the mysteries of the outer atmosphere 10 miles above the earth, drifted in their balloon about 10,000 feet above Bavaria today after their return from space, apparently unable to descend.

Whether the sealed aluminum cage attached to the balloon contained two dead men, or two who had made scientific experiments at a height never before achieved by man, puzzled those awaiting the return of Prof. Auguste Piccard and Charles Kipfer, his assistant.

Only enough oxygen, vital to sustain life at that altitude, was carried in the cage for ten hours, and late today that time limit was long past. The balloon was sighted at 5 P. M. drifting near Partenkirchen, Bavaria. The balloon was going east northeast toward mountainous districts, with thunderstorms threatening.

Officials of the Riedinger Balloon Works here, which built the balloon, were perturbed; they realized that the scientists flew for a part of the time, before reaching the upper altitudes, without drawing on their oxygen, but estimated that the supply must have been exhausted by now. Most of the afternoon the balloon drifted back and forth over south Germany, making no apparent effort to descend, so that it was supposed the occupants were unable to do so.

Berlin, May 27.—(U.P.)—The Piccard balloon was reported sighted today in the neighborhood of the Vosges mountains, moving west by north in the direction of Belfort and Metz, in the northwestern part of France. It was estimated to be at a height of 15,000 meters—52,000 feet or nearly 10 miles—higher than man before had ever been.

Paris, May 27.—Professor Piccard's balloon, reports reaching here said, was last sighted near Murnau, Bavarian Alps, at an altitude of 15,000 feet, facing a thunderstorm. The hour set for normal consumption of the balloon's oxygen supply has passed.

Berlin, May 27.—Professor Piccard's balloon was sighted at 3 P. M. today over Oberammergau, Bavaria, and later over Mt. Ettaler Mandl, still at a higher altitude.

At that time the balloon had been aloft nearly 12 hours. It carried oxygen for only 10 hours. Piccard himself before the ascent, announced he planned only five to seven hours in the air.

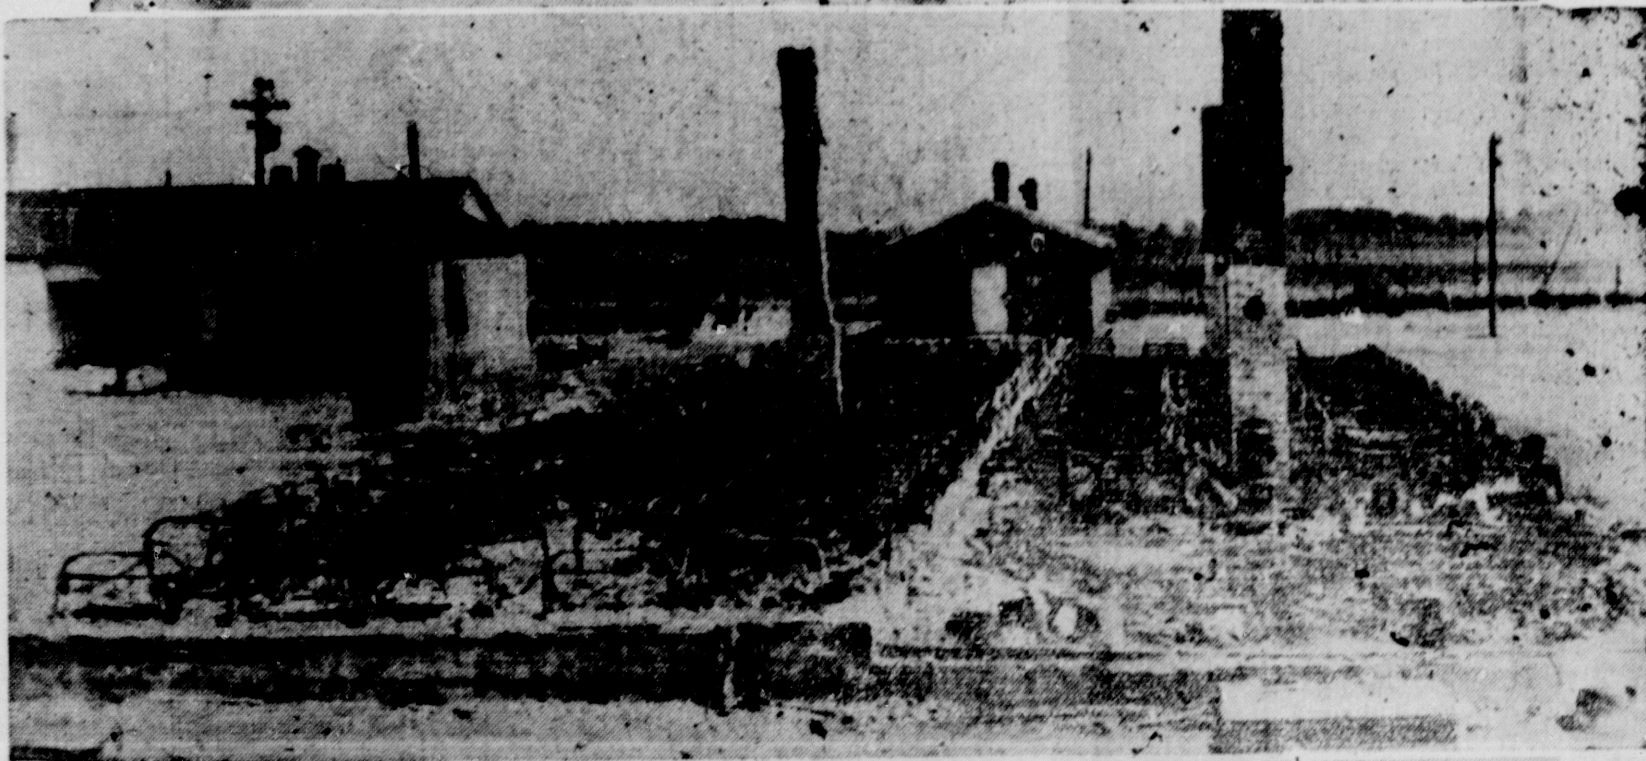

Berlin, May 27.—Prof. Piccard's balloon was reported at 2 P. M. 26,260 feet above Schongau, near Lake Wuermersee, in Bavaria.

From previous reports of altitude, it was believed possible Piccard had made his observations and was descending.

Augsburg, Bavaria, Germany, May 27.—An altitude record for free balloons was believed to have been set today by Prof. Auguste Piccard, who, with a companion, rose from the earth just before dawn, seeking to penetrate the upper air to heights unreach by man.

Unconfirmed reports from an amateur meteorologist near Lake Constance, on the Swiss border, said Piccard's balloon was sighted at 10 A. M. flying at an estimated altitude of 12,000 meters (about 39,360 feet), or nearly 7½ miles.

Rioting started at the Illinois state prison farm, near Vandalia, when guards' shotguns turned back an attempted escape, which had been "tipped off" a week ago. Four prisoners made a break for freedom. The prisoners scaled two successive barbed-wire barricades. They were two hundred feet beyond it when guards saw them. When they ignored commands to halt, the guards opened fire, wounding all four. Inside the barracks the convicts knew of the attempted escape, and the shooting was the signal for pandemonium. Within a few moments the dining hall and dormitories 2, 3, 4 and 6 were in flames. Photo shows the ruins of one of the dormitories.

Sailor Haley stopped suddenly, glared at the loiterer, and asked for confirmation of what he thought he had heard. The civilian obligingly repeated the remark and a fist fight ensued.

No novice at the art of fistfights, Sailor Haley held his own temporarily. But when his adversary resorted to biting and kicking tactics, the sailor found himself in a sorry plight.

It was at this stage that the crowd watching the battle heard a grinding of brakes and saw an expensive coupe stop at a nearby curb. From the car hopped a middle-sized fellow wearing a blue uniform and a cap resplendent with gold lace. He rushed to the scene and addressed Sailor Haley:

"What's up? Can I help you, boy?"

Sailor Haley stopped fighting and stared at the stranger with astonishment. He said nothing but took his girl friends by the arm and hurried away. His opponent likewise vanished.

Patrolman James V. Stanton, arriving a few moments later, recognized the mediator as his old friend, Rear-Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

"I stepped in to see that the navy didn't take a licking," the explorer smilingly explained.

PICCARD AND AIDE REACH 10 MILE ALTITUDE

PREVIOUS FREE BALLOON ALTITUDE OF 35,420 FEET MADE BY BERSON AND SUERING, 1901

OXYGEN SUPPLY FOR ONLY TEN HOURS; BALLOON NOW FLIES AIMLESSLY

Editorial Note: It is believed that when the balloon of Prof. Piccard finally lands that it will be found to contain the bodies of the courageous scientist and his aide. His 10-mile ascent met with difficulties he could not cope with and both were probably suffocated and frozen.

With no one to guide the descending balloon, it may be wrecked in the mountains and all the valuable data gained will be lost. Like Andre, Piccard would have died happy if he knew his memoranda were preserved.

Partenkirchen, Bavaria, May 27.—(U.P.)—Prof. Auguste Piccard's balloon was sighted at 5 P. M. today at an altitude of 4,000 meters (13,120 feet) and remaining in a stationary position.

Aeronautic authorities were astonished that Prof. Piccard had not pulled the rip cord which would release the gas in the balloon bag and cause descent, and they expressed fear that he and his companion, Charles Kipfer, were dead.

The balloon was still visible at 7:30 P. M. Its altitude at that time was estimated at between 5,000 and 6,000 meters (16,400 feet to 19,680 feet). It was moving slowly to the southward, apparently out of control and was rising and descending erratically.

Augsburg, Bavaria, May 27.—Two scientists who sought to penetrate the mysteries of the outer atmosphere 10 miles above the earth, drifted in their balloon about 10,000 feet above Bavaria today after their return from space, apparently unable to descend.

Whether the sealed aluminum cage attached to the balloon contained two dead men, or two who had made scientific experiments at a height never before achieved by man, puzzled those awaiting the return of Prof. Auguste Piccard and Charles Kipfer, his assistant.

Only enough oxygen, vital to sustain life at that altitude, was carried in the cage for ten hours, and late today that time limit was long past. The balloon was sighted at 5 P. M. drifting near Partenkirchen, Bavaria. The balloon was going east northeast toward mountainous districts, with thunderstorms threatening.

Officials of the Riedinger Balloon Works here, which built the balloon, were perturbed; they realized that the scientists flew for a part of the time, before reaching the upper altitudes, without drawing on their oxygen, but estimated that the supply must have been exhausted by now. Most of the afternoon the balloon drifted back and forth over south Germany, making no apparent effort to descend, so that it was supposed the occupants were unable to do so.

Berlin, May 27.—(U.P.)—The Piccard balloon was reported sighted today in the neighborhood of the Vosges mountains, moving west by north in the direction of Belfort and Metz, in the northwestern part of France. It was estimated to be at a height of 15,000 meters—52,000 feet or nearly 10 miles—higher than man before had ever been.

Paris, May 27.—Professor Piccard's balloon, reports reaching here said, was last sighted near Murnau, Bavarian Alps, at an altitude of 15,000 feet, facing a thunderstorm. The hour set for normal consumption of the balloon's oxygen supply has passed.

Berlin, May 27.—Professor Piccard's balloon was sighted at 3 P. M. today over Oberammergau, Bavaria, and later over Mt. Ettaler Manned, still at a higher altitude.

At that time the balloon had been aloft nearly 12 hours. It carried oxygen for only 10 hours. Piccard himself before the ascent, announced he planned only five to seven hours in the air.

Berlin, May 27.—Prof. Piccard's balloon was reported at 2 P. M. 26,500 feet above Schongau, near Lake Weuersee, in Bavaria.

From previous reports of altitude, it was believed possible Piccard had made his observations and was descending.

Augsburg, Bavaria, Germany, May 27.—An altitude record for free balloons was believed to have been set today by Prof. Auguste Piccard, who, with a companion, rose from the earth just before dawn, seeking to penetrate the upper air to heights unreach by man.

Unconfirmed reports from an amateur meteorologist near Lake Constance, on the Swiss border, said Piccard's balloon was sighted at 10 A. M. flying at an estimated altitude of 12,000 meters (about 39,360 feet), or nearly 7½ miles.

Rioting started at the Illinois state prison farm, near Vandalia, when guards' shotguns turned back an attempted escape, which had been "tipped off" a week ago. Four prisoners made a break for freedom. The prisoners scaled two successive barbed-wire barricades. They were two hundred feet beyond it when guards saw them. When they ignored commands to halt, the guards opened fire, wounding all four. Inside the barracks the convicts knew of the attempted escape, and the shooting was the signal for pandemonium. Within a few moments the dining hall and dormitories 2, 3, 4 and 6 were in flames. Photo shows the ruins of one of the dormitories.

Fashions for the Smart Woman

A TAILORED SPORTS SUIT

This is really a sports suit but if you confine yourself to wearing it for sports only, you will be missing opportunities for appearing very smart elsewhere. Its lines appear to require master tailoring but really they are simple to put together. The pattern was made from a Paris import and is as easy as an apron to put together. The coat, you see, is unlined and is fitted to the waistline by means of dart-tucks. The revers collar may be finished with a decorative overcast stitch which also outlines the patch pocket. As for the skirt, aren't the inverted-pleats smart? If it is made of flannel or soft wool, a gay scarf and cluster of patent-leather flowers are smart accessories.

A TAILORED SPORTS SUIT

This is really a sports suit but if you confine yourself to wearing it for sports only, you will be missing opportunities for appearing very smart elsewhere. Its lines appear to require master tailoring but really they are simple to put together. The pattern was made from a Paris import and is as easy as an apron to put together. The coat, you see, is unlined and is fitted to the waistline by means of dart-tucks. The revers collar may be finished with a decorative overcast stitch which also outlines the patch pocket. As for the skirt, aren't the inverted-pleats smart? If it is made of flannel or soft wool, a gay scarf and cluster of patent-leather flowers are smart accessories.

Pictorial Printed Pattern No. 5696. Sizes 14 to 42, 50 cents.

Indian Snake Dances

The Indian snake dance was for the purpose of summoning the spirits of the dead. Each dancer stamps hard with his right foot in the belief that the spirits come in answer, and the snakes then become the messengers of the dead.

AS FUMES ACCIDENTALLY KILL HIS MOTHER AND INJURE CHAS. R. ELLISON

Antioch, Ill., May 28. — (U.P.) — Charles R. Ellison, 65, who was known 20 years ago as the "blonde plunger" and who owned the horse which won the Kentucky derby in 1903, was near death today of gas fumes which were released accidentally and which killed his mother, Anna Larson, 80.

Ellison's wife, Grace, found him unconscious in an upstairs room when she returned last night from Chicago. A gas burner in the kitchen was open. He had been overcome while playing solitaire. Mrs. Larson, who had been asleep in a bedroom adjoining the kitchen, was dead.

Two decades ago, Ellison was known as one of the most daring "plungers" making the regular runs of American race tracks. It was said he became a millionaire betting on the races, but later lost most of his fortune. At one time he owned a large string of horses, most of which were named after Chicago politicians. One of them, Judge Himes, won the derby in 1903.

This Frenchman was probably the greatest living expert on mushrooms, and wrote a book on his pet subject. He was also careful to illustrate the book with pictures showing mushrooms that could be eaten with safety and those that were dangerous. Apparently M. ### English Like Pantomimes

Englishmen in exile seem to cling to pantomime as tenaciously as to plum pudding, writes a columnist in the Manchester Guardian. When the Resolute wintered in the ice at Melville island in 1852 Christmas was celebrated by the production of a pantomime, which had the novelty of being played entirely for the fun of the performers. There was no audience, for every member of the crew took part, with the commander, Sir George Nares, starring as Columbine.

In 1875, when on another polar expedition in the Alert, Nares "reopened the Royal Arctic theater" after it had been closed for 25 years, and pantomime was again the favorite pastime of all concerned.

"As You Like It"

Various commentators have advanced different theories as to why Shakespeare's play was given the name "As You Like It." Braithwaite, however, in his "Barnaby's Journal," speaks of "As You Like It" as a proverbial motto, and this seems more likely to imply the true explanation of the title of Shakespeare's play. The title of the comedy may on this supposition be exactly parallel with that of "Much Ado About Nothing." The proverbial title of the play implies the freedom of thought and indifference to censure which characterizes the sayings and doings of most of the actors in this comedy of human nature in a forest.

ALL MARRIED 50 YEARS; CELEBRATE AT COTTAGE

Families Honor Parents in Observance of Double Golden Wedding Anniversary

Grow up Together in Norway; Each Makes Way Here Alone to Establish Home

A childhood friendship—culminating in a double golden wedding anniversary celebration—was observed Sunday, May 24 at the Iver Benson cottage on Lake Bertha on the occasion of the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Dullum, Gull Lake and Mr. and Mrs. Iver Benson, Lake Bertha.

Together with their children and their families, they met Sunday morning at the cottage to spend the day. Mr. and Mrs. Dullum and Mr. and Mrs. Benson were all childhood friends in Norway—both couples were married in Brainerd 50 years ago and through all these years have been close neighbors and retained their early affection for each other.

A most pleasant day was spent at the lake. A chicken dinner was served at noon with games and cards and social time in the afternoon. They were each presented with a gold coin a gift from the children by the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Benson, Lloyd Van Auker of Minneapolis. In the evening a lunch was served at which time the golden wedding cake was served. Little Geraldine Dullum, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dullum and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dullum of Brainerd, cut the first four pieces of the cake and presented to the honored couple. The cake had been made by Lloyd Van Auker of Minneapolis, an employee in the laboratory and research department of the Pillsbury Flour Mills. It was a five layer gold cake, prettily decorated in white and pink, and with anniversary greetings.

Growing up together in Norway, each came to this country alone, all meeting again in Brainerd. Mrs. Dullum came over in 1881, Mr. Dullum having come over a few months before. Mr. Benson came over a short time before Mrs. Benson.

Upon coming to Brainerd Mr. Dullum and Mr. Benson batched together in a house where the new court house is now situated. The ladies were employed in Brainerd, and roomed together. At that time Mr. Benson was working in a saw mill as saw tester.

ROASTING CONTROL IS FLAVOR SECRET OF RARE COFFEE

Scientific Control Gives Hills Bros. Coffee the Flavor of Flavors

Invariably foods cooked in small quantities taste the best. The cook is able to control every step—perfectly—mixing, flavoring and cooking.

The principle of Hills Bros.' patented, continuous roasting process is based on the same idea. Instead of roasting their exclusive blend of coffee in bulk, measured quantities of about three pounds pass continuously through the roasters. The heat and speed of operation are accurately controlled with the result that Hills Bros. Coffee is absolutely uniform.

No other coffee can have the same delicious, uniform flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee because no other coffee is roasted the same way. This process—Controlled Roasting—was originated and patented by Hills Bros.

The vacuum can in which Hills Bros. Coffee is packed keeps it fresh always. By the vacuum packing process, air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is taken out of the can and kept out. Ordinary cans, even if air-tight, will not keep coffee fresh. Grocers everywhere sell Hills Bros. Coffee. Ask for it by name and look for the Arab—the trade-mark—on the can.

Benson and her sons Lolyd, Henry and Richard, all of Minneapolis. Upon presenting the gift, Mr. Van Auker read the following verses, composed by R. G. Jenkins:

To Mr. and Mrs. Iver Benson and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Dullum:
Fifty years of married life,
Of joys and tears,
Success and strife,
Fifty years—it doesn't seem long,
When you go through life
With a smile and a song.

The path has been smooth.
The path has been bright,
But at times it was rough
And as dark as the night.
But you've trudged it together,
Mile after mile,
And each turn has brought you
New joys and a smile.

Fifty years through life's busy whirl,
With the same boyish sweetheart,
The same dearest girl,
And she seems to grow dearer
As years o'er you fall,
When you think how she's helped you,
And cheered you through all.

Just think of the cares that mother has had,
And some have been shared, of course, by dad,
Up in the morning 'ere break of day,
Cleaning and cooking and singing away,
With never a thought of herself alone,
But striving to make theirs a happy home.

Iver and Herman batched, you know,
Back in the distant long ago,
But in May, eighteen eighty-one,
They got tired of cooking and,
Living alone.
So they both were married,
And, if time is true,
The change did them good, I think,
Don't you?

This is your Golden Wedding Day,
And GOLDEN it is—
For naught can repay,
The joys you've had,
Through those fifty years,
Nor could gold buy,
The worries and tears.

These golden coins
We wish to present
As a token of hours with you we've spent,
Each hour with you has been Golden,
A Treasure from God's open door,
And may God's Treasure Chest,
Be opened to you.

When you meet on Life's Other Shore,
Presented by their daughters, sons,
their families and friends, in honor of their golden wedding anniversaries.
Composed by R. G. Jenkins.

APPREHENSION OVER BANDITS DRIVES WOMAN INSANE

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 27. — (U.P.) — Apprehension suffered when two bank bandits hid in a swamp near her home was blamed today for the mental derangement of Miss Viola Weaver, Woodside, who was admitted to the state hospital for the insane here.

Two bandits who held up the State Bank of Hewitt, Minn., abandoned their automobile near Miss Weaver's home and were believed to have been hiding in a swamp nearby.

2 HELD FOR STEALING $1,200 FROM PARENTS OF CROOKSTON GIRL

Minneapolis, May 27. — (U.P.) — William Midderigh, 35, Thief River Falls and his sweetheart, Violet White, Crookston, were held by police today on charges of stealing $1,200 from the girl's parents in Crookston.

The arrest was made at the request of Crookston authorities after William White, the girl's father, reported that the money was missing from an empty tea can where he kept it hidden in his garage.

Midderigh was first suspected of the theft when he bought a new automobile at Doran, Minn. Midderigh, it was said, asked Alvin Hendrickson, the garage owner to drive him to Crookston where he would get money to pay for the new car.

The money was the savings of Mr. and Mrs. White who lost considerable money in the failure of a bank in Crookston.

Midderigh, it was said, paid the garage man from a large roll of bills which he obtained after he asked Hendrickson to park his car and wait.

Mrs. White told authorities she had given her daughter Violet $10 a week ago from the hidden savings and believed that the girl had tipped off her sweetheart as to the location of the cache.

FAULTY WING WAS CAUSE OF PLANE CRASH

Wheaton, Ill., May 27. — (U.P.) — A faulty wing which collapsed in mid-air caused the crash of the Chicago Daily News' two-motored Bellanca Sesquiplane, in which four men were killed, a coroner's jury composed of airplane pilots was told today.

Harry S. Beam, Cloverdale, told the jury he saw a part of the tail and right wing come apart, heard an explosion and saw a puff of smoke near the cabin as the huge ship crashed in the midst of an attempt to set a payload distance record.

Other witnesses gave similar testimony, except that Arthur Hynes, DuPage county deputy sheriff, insisted it was the left wing he saw fall away. Shirley Short, pilot; Reinhard Peck, co-pilot; Lewis Rice, radio operator, and Robert Cornley, mechanic, were killed.

Hog Prices at South St. Paul Decline Again

South St. Paul, Minn., May 27. — (U.P.) — For the second time in two days hog prices in South St. Paul markets declined today to new all-time low marks.

Lights and butcher stopped at $5.90 per hundred pounds while heavier weights and plainer grades were on down to $4.75. Packing sows cashed $4.25 to $4.50. Yesterday's low averages topped at $6.15.

Normal runs and poor demand for pork in line with the bad conditions in the cattle markets was blamed for the declines.

Growing up together in Norway, each came to this country alone, all meeting again in Brainerd. Mrs. Dullum came over in 1881, Mr. Dullum having come over a few months before. Mr. Benson came over a short time before Mrs. Benson.

Upon coming to Brainerd Mr. Dullum and Mr. Benson batched together in a house where the new court house is now situated. The ladies were employed in Brainerd, and roomed together. At that time Mr. Benson was working in a saw mill as saw tester.

ROASTING CONTROL IS FLAVOR SECRET OF RARE COFFEE

Scientific Control Gives Hills Bros. Coffee the Flavor of Flavors

Invariably foods cooked in small quantities taste the best. The cook is able to control every step—perfectly—mixing, flavoring and cooking.

The principle of Hills Bros.' patented, continuous roasting process is based on the same idea. Instead of roasting their exclusive blend of coffee in bulk, measured quantities of about three pounds pass continuously through the roasters. The heat and speed of operation are accurately controlled with the result that Hills Bros. Coffee is absolutely uniform.

No other coffee can have the same delicious, uniform flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee because no other coffee is roasted the same way. This process—Controlled Roasting—was originated and patented by Hills Bros.

The vacuum can in which Hills Bros. Coffee is packed keeps it fresh always. By the vacuum packing process, air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is taken out of the can and kept out. Ordinary cans, even if air-tight, will not keep coffee fresh. Grocers everywhere sell Hills Bros. Coffee. Ask for it by name and look for the Arab—the trade-mark—on the can.

READ THE DISPATCH ADS

Benson and her sons Lolyd, Henry and Richard, all of Minneapolis. Upon presenting the gift, Mr. Van Auker read the following verses, composed by R. G. Jenkins:

To Mr. and Mrs. Iver Benson and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Dullum: Fifty years of married life, Of joys and tears, Success and strife, Fifty years—it doesn't seem long, When you go through life With a smile and a song.

The path has been smooth, The path has been bright, But at times it was rough And as dark as the night. But you've trudged it together, Mile after mile, And each turn has brought you New joys and a smile.

Fifty years through life's busy whirl, With the same boyish sweetheart, The same dearest girl, And she seems to grow dearer As years o'er you fall, When you think how she's helped you, And cheered you through all.

Just think of the cares that mother has had, And some have been shared, of course, by dad, Up in the morning 'ere break of day, Cleaning and cooking and singing away, With never a thought of herself alone, But striving to make theirs a happy home.

Iver and Herman batched, you know, Back in the distant long ago, But in May, eighteen eighty-one, They got tired of cooking and, Living alone, So they both were married, And, if time is true, The change did them good, I think, Don't you?

This is your Golden Wedding Day, And GOLDEN it is—For naught can repay, The joys you've had, Through those fifty years, Nor could gold buy, The worries and tears. These golden coins We wish to present As a token of hours with you we've spent, Each hour with you has been Golden, A Treasure from God's open door, And may God's Treasure Chest, Be opened to you, When you meet on Life's Other Shore. Presented by their daughters, sons, their families and friends, in honor of their golden wedding anniversaries. Composed by R. G. Jenkins.

APPREHENSION OVER BANDITS DRIVES WOMAN INSANE

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 27.—(UP)—Apprehension suffered when two bank bandits hid in a swamp near her home was blamed today for the mental derangement of Miss Viola Weaver, Woodside, who was admitted to the state hospital for the insane here.

Two bandits who held up the State Bank of Hewitt, Minn., abandoned their automobile near Miss Weaver's home and were believed to have been hiding in a swamp nearby.

2 HELD FOR STEALING $1,200 FROM PARENTS OF CROOKSTON GIRL

Minneapolis, May 27.—(UP)—William Miderigh, 35, Thief River Falls and his sweetheart, Violet White, Crookston, were held by police today on charges of stealing $1,200 from the girl's parents in Crookston.

The arrest was made at the request of Crookston authorities after William White, the girl's father, reported that the money was missing from an empty tea can where he kept it hidden in his garage.

Miderigh was first suspected of the theft when he bought a new automobile at Doran, Minn. Miderigh, it was said, asked Alvin Hendrickson, the garage owner to drive him to Crookston where he would get money to pay for the new car.

The money was the savings of Mr. and Mrs. White who lost considerable money in the failure of a bank in Crookston.

Miderigh, it was said, paid the garage man from a large roll of bills which he obtained after he asked Hendrickson to park his car and wait.

Mrs. White told authorities she had given her daughter Violet $10 a week ago from the hidden savings and believed that the girl had tipped off her sweetheart as to the location of the cache.

FAULTY WING WAS CAUSE OF PLANE CRASH

Wheaton, Ill., May 27. — (UP) — A faulty wing which collapsed in mid-air caused the crash of the Chicago Daily News' two-motored Bellanca Sesquiplane, in which four men were killed, a coroner's jury composed of airplane pilots was told today.

Harry S. Bearn, Cloverdale, told the jury he saw a part of the tail and right wing come apart, heard an explosion and saw a puff of smoke near the cabin as the huge ship crashed in the midst of an attempt to set a payload distance record.

Other witnesses gave similar testimony, except that Arthur Hynes, DuPage county deputy sheriff, insisted it was the left wing he saw fall away. Shirley Short, pilot; Reinhard Peck, co-pilot; Lewis Rice, radio operator, and Robert Cornley, mechanic, were killed.

Hog Prices at South St. Paul Decline Again

South St. Paul, Minn., May 27.—(UP)—For the second time in two days hog prices in South St. Paul markets declined today to new all-time low marks.

Lights and butcher stopped at $5.90 per hundred pounds while heavier weights and plainer grades were on down to $4.75. Packing sows cashed $4.25 to $4.50. Yesterday's low averages topped at $6.15.

Normal runs and poor demand for pork in line with the bad conditions in the cattle markets was blamed for the declines.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 27, 1931

George Washington and the Constitution

ONE of the most momentous gatherings ever to convene on this continent assembled in Philadelphia, May 25, 1787. It was the Constitutional Convention which was called by the Continental Congress to consider the amendment of the Articles of Confederation or the creation of a new instrument of government by which the United States might be better consolidated and the public affairs more efficiently administered.

The foremost men of the country were there, but conspicuous above all the rest was George Washington, the former Commander-in-Chief of the Continental armies under whose leadership independence had been won. It was inevitable that he should take a leading part in erecting a suitable government for the country he had saved, and as soon as the Convention could organize he was unanimously "called up to the chair as President of the body."

The Division of Information and Publication of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission notes the importance of this date in the history of this country, and calls attention to the fact that it is to be the occasion for suitable ceremonies in connection with the nation-wide celebration next year of the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the Birth of George Washington.

The bicentenary observance of the birth of the First President has been planned to extend to every corner of the United States. It will begin on February 22 and continue until the following Thanksgiving Day. It will embrace every phase of Washington's life and include in its programs the recognition of his great services to this country.

The records of the Convention consisting of the official journal and the unofficial shorthand notes made by James Madison, record only one occasion when Washington made a suggestion in the Convention as to a point in the Constitution. There can be no doubt, however, that he was in constant touch with the leaders of the Convention and that his counsel was taken upon many important clauses of the document as finally completed.

It is impossible to overestimate the influence George Washington wielded in the framing of the Constitution. The part he played in the creation of this great instrument of government did not consist of impassioned oratory or specious argument. It was solely the silent influence of an unassailable character.

When the delegates came to the Convention many of them were determined not to surrender the authority of the separate States to any form of central government; but the realization that George Washington would be the first executive under the Constitution led them to abandon their objections and confer on the President more power than they at first had any idea of granting. It may be said that the Presidency of the United States was created with George Washington as the ideal type of man who should fill that office.

Recreation and Tourist Industry

THE recreational use of forests has grown to such importance that an established and recognized industry has been the outgrowth, says Grover M. Conzet, Commissioner of Forestry. Minnesota ranks third in the extent of its recreational use, and within the state the industry ranks fourth in magnitude in income derived.

The industry built up around recreation has too often neglected to evaluate the importance of conservation. Without lakes and streams, game and fish and scenic beauty, the recreation and tourist industry could not exist.

All forest lands within the state irrespective of ownership (state, national or private) should be so managed and protected as to encourage, assist, enlarge and perpetuate the recreational facilities of the state.

On all state forests, roads, trails, canoe routes, fire breaks and camp sites should be provided for the convenience and safety of the tourist.

Weather affects agriculture, public health and recreation. The forests so affect weather that much effort should be put forth in forest protection and regeneration.

Camp resorts and hotels should be assisted as well as supervised so that they will be a credit to the state, the forest and the industry.

An Auxiliary Needed

WITH Brainerd's experience in light and power shortage yesterday, it brings to mind forcibly the necessity of having an auxiliary plant to carry the city in emergencies. The city should build a plant equipped with Diesel engines. These engines have been so perfected that current can be generated very cheaply, in fact some maintain current can be produced more cheaply than the city is now paying for it at the switchboard.

The experience of yesterday demonstrates that Brainerd, which gets its current from far flung transmission lines, is at the mercy of an electrical storm. The storm of yesterday isolated Brainerd over three hours.

PROFESSIONAL men of Red Wing have received telegrams and long distance telephone calls from a Chicago brokerage concern in which "inside tips" were offered on certain stocks listed on the exchange, which, according to the brokerage "racketeers" were scheduled to shoot skyward within six days. The telegrams in most case were turned over to the State Securities commission, who declared they knew nothing about the brokerage concern.

THE Pequot Review has changed its name to Crow Wing County Review and have established a business office in Brainerd. The office is in charge of W. E. Sherlock, Benn Wagner and Raymond Anderson. The paper will continue to be issued from the postoffice at Pequot and the mechanical work will be done at Pequot and Hackensack as heretofore.

FREIGHT rate increases proposed by the Association of Railway Executives do not meet with commendation by the presidents of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railways, it is reported. A heavy increase will be vigorously fought by Northwest shippers.

To keep fit and to know that you are in good physical shape is something which every person should take care of, and about the only way in which this can be brought about is through annual medical examinations.

"MURDER AT EAGLE'S NEST"

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

The murder of Baroness von Treut at Eagle's Nest, Emily Hardy's country home is discovered by Assistant Police Chief Vance through a mysterious phone call. Emily's butler James receiving a note from the Baroness. The shawl of Mary Frost, a guest, is found on the body. Her husband, Ted, was engaged to the Baroness. Mary's statement of returning to Eagle's Nest, alone, for the shawl, at midnight, and seeing it on Laura Allen, is discounted by information that both she and Ted arrived home together at 4 A. M. Laura claims Mary was wearing the shawl in the garden. "Bim" Martin, young newspaper reporter and fiancee of Vance, sees the butler James and is puzzled. Later, she learns that the Baroness was Mary Belle, noted dancer. A pair of slippers is found on the roof and a uniform, similar to the strip of paper discovered near the body, is unearthed in the cellar. "Bim" says that the Baroness' maid wears large shoes though otherwise petite. "Bim" discovers the tire tracks on Trent's car correspond with tracks found on an unused road near Eagle's Nest. Millicent Trent spies on her. Bob Trent resents a snub the Baroness has given his wife, Mary Frost isalous of Ted. She warns "Bim" against giving up Vance for Carey, the New York reporter. While "Bim" is with Mary, Millicent calls. After she leaves, Ted misses his cigarette lighter.

CHAPTER XXXIV.
"I'm not," Imogene announced flatly, "going to stay at Eagle's Nest! I hadn't anything to do with the old murder and you got no right to keep me there. That's what I came to tell you, I'm going!"
"Sit down, Imogene," Walter smiled at the girl and Bim felt at once as if she would like to slap the pert face. "What," he went on after he had placed a chair and held it politely while the maid spread her ruffles till she looked like a telephone doll, "seems to be the trouble?"
"The place is haunted!" Imogene flung out. Then, seeing that he was about to laugh, "I suppose that's funny! Well, you wouldn't think so if you had to sleep up there over the room where SHE was. There's things going on, I tell you, and I'm not going to stay. I'm a decent, hard-working girl, I am, and there's things I won't stand for nobody."

Strange Disclosure

"We don't think it's funny," Walter said reassuringly. "Tell us what you've seen, Imogene. We'll do all we can to help you, you know."

"I don't want help; I want to get out. Well, I haven't seen anything, but I've heard plenty. There's noises in the dressing room at night. It's a pounding, kind of, very loud. Around midnight."

"Every night? What time does it start?"

"I don't know what time it starts. Night before last was the first I heard it. I'd been asleep and it woke me up. I thought they were moving things out down there. Then I thought, 'That's funny, moving in the middle of the night.' I laid and listened a while and then the clock struck twelve and pretty soon the noises stopped."

"I didn't think much about it yesterday, but last night I heard it again. It ain't loud. That's the old part of the house and there's a pipe runs up from the dressing room into my room and the sound comes up around the pipe. It's kind of like someone was pounding careful so's not to make any racket. And when midnight struck again, why the noise stopped."

"I been through enough," she finished tartly. "I'm not going to mix with any ghosts of Baronesses!"

"Nonsense, Imogene. Whatever's

making the noise in the dressing room is no ghost; you can bank on that. This all you know about it?"
"It's all except that I'm quitting. I'm through. I told Mrs. Hardy and she said I'd have to see you. So here I am."

Walter considered while Bim watched, a plan forming in her mind. She would have suggested it at once but for Walter's new stand-offishness, but now she plucked up courage when the pause lengthened and he seemed lost in thought while the maid waited.

A Man's Job

"Why not let me help with this?" Bim's voice was almost timid but it brought Walter's eyes to her in a startled way.

"What I thought," she continued, "was that I could arrange to spend the night at Eagle's Nest. Nobody'd think anything of it; I've been there often, you know. I'll have Em give me a room in the west wing and then Imogene and I can just change over. When the noise begins I can sneak down and see what it's all about."

Walter objected positively and at once. "This is a man's job, Bim. I won't have you taking the risk."

She thrilled to the realization that his stand-offishness was only surface deep after all. But this did not prevent her urging the point.

"A man couldn't get away with it, Walter. He'd be spotted at once and nothing would happen. Besides there isn't any risk. I—I want to help you with this," she finished half pleadingly.

In the end he promised to think it over. "Anyway you can't leave, Imogene," he told the maid. Don't try; the trains and buses and ferry all are watched. Nothing's going to hurt you."

The maid scowled but said nothing. After a moment he went on. "Anything else you want to tell? Something new you've remembered? And when she did not answer at once, "All right, let's have it. Now or later, you know; all the truth this time."

"Well—I don't know. You won't tell I said anything? You're liable to be a lot of telling if you hold out, young lady."

"Yes, well . . . It's about Miss Allan when she went out on the terrace that night . . ."

"Yes? What about her?"

"Well, it kind of slipped my mind at first. But I was thinking it over and I remembered she met someone out there. They walked into the garden, out toward the summer house. They weren't gone long and when they came back Miss Allan was crying. I guess you don't care about that, though."

"Who was Miss Allan with out there? No holding out, remember."

"I'm not holding out. I ain't sure who it was she met, but it was Mr. Frost that came back with her."

Here was a new and astonishing development in the mystery surrounding the murder at Eagle's Nest and one which caused Walter Vance to look grim.

He dismissed Imogene kindly, telling her that she would be well protected from ghosts and such. But once the door closed upon her, he assured Bim that rougher methods would be in order.

"I don't say that this crowd—Frost and the Allan girl and the rest of them—know who shot the Baroness. But there has been too much underhandness; nobody's told a straightforward story as yet. From now on they'll loosen up or I'll run them in as material witnesses."

"To begin with, the Allan girl is going to talk and talk plenty. I want to know who she saw in the garden hardly more than an hour before the Baroness von Wiese was plucked there. If she had a date with Frost and wants to pipe down on it, that's just too bad."

George Washington and the Constitution

ONE of the most momentous gatherings ever to convene on this continent assembled in Philadelphia, May 25, 1787. It was the Constitutional Convention which was called by the Continental Congress to consider the amendment of the Articles of Confederation or the creation of a new instrument of government by which the United States might be better consolidated and the public affairs more efficiently administered.

The foremost men of the country were there, but conspicuous above all the rest was George Washington, the former Commander-in-Chief of the Continental armies under whose leadership independence had been won. It was inevitable that he should take a leading part in erecting a suitable government for the country he had saved, and as soon as the Convention could organize he was unanimously "called up to the chair as President of the body."

The Division of Information and Publication of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission notes the importance of this date in the history of this country, and calls attention to the fact that it is to be the occasion for suitable ceremonies in connection with the nation-wide celebration next year of the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the Birth of George Washington.

The bicentenary observance of the birth of the First President has been planned to extend to every corner of the United States. It will begin on February 22 and continue until the following Thanksgiving Day. It will embrace every phase of Washington's life and include in its programs the recognition of his great services to this country.

The records of the Convention consisting of the official journal and the unofficial shorthand notes made by James Madison, record only one occasion when Washington made a suggestion in the Convention as to a point in the Constitution. There can be no doubt, however, that he was in constant touch with the leaders of the Convention and that his counsel was taken upon many important clauses of the document as finally completed.

It is impossible to overestimate the influence George Washington wielded in the framing of the Constitution. The part he played in the creation of this great instrument of government did not consist of impassioned oratory or specious argument. It was solely the silent influence of an unassailable character.

When the delegates came to the Convention many of them were determined not to surrender the authority of the separate States to any form of central government; but the realization that George Washington would be the first executive under the Constitution led them to abandon their objections and confer on the President more power than they at first had any idea of granting. It may be said that the Presidency of the United States was created with George Washington as the ideal type of man who should fill that office.

Recreation and Tourist Industry

THE recreational use of forests has grown to such importance that an established and recognized industry has been the outgrowth, says Grover M. Conzet, Commissioner of Forestry. Minnesota ranks third in the extent of its recreational use, and within the state the industry ranks fourth in magnitude in income derived.

The industry built up around recreation has too often neglected to evaluate the importance of conservation. Without lakes and streams, game and fish and scenic beauty, the recreation and tourist industry could not exist.

All forest lands within the state irrespective of ownership (state, national or private) should be so managed and protected as to encourage, assist, enlarge and perpetuate the recreational facilities of the state.

On all state forests, roads, trails, canoe routes, fire breaks and camp sites should be provided for the convenience and safety of the tourist.

Weather affects agriculture, public health and recreation. The forests so affect weather that much effort should be put forth in forest protection and regeneration.

Camp resorts and hotels should be assisted as well as supervised so that they will be a credit to the state, the forest and the industry.

An Auxiliary Needed

WITH Brainerd's experience in light and power shortage yesterday, it brings to mind forcibly the necessity of having an auxiliary plant to carry the city in emergencies. The city should build a plant equipped with Diesel engines. These engines have been so perfected that current can be generated very cheaply, in fact some maintain current can be produced more cheaply than the city is now paying for it at the switchboard.

The experience of yesterday demonstrates that Brainerd, which gets its current from far flung transmission lines, is at the mercy of an electrical storm. The storm of yesterday isolated Brainerd over three hours.

PROFESSIONAL men of Red Wing have received telegrams and long distance telephone calls from a Chicago brokerage concern in which "inside tips" were offered on certain stocks listed on the exchange, which, according to the brokerage "racketeers" were scheduled to shoot skyward within six days. The telegrams in most case were turned over to the State Securities commission, who declared they knew nothing about the brokerage concern.

THE Pequot Review has changed its name to Crow Wing County Review and have established a business office in Brainerd. The office is in charge of W. E. Sherlock, Benn Wagner and Raymond Anderson. The paper will continue to be issued from the postoffice at Pequot and the mechanical work will be done at Pequot and Hackensack as heretofore.

FREIGHT rate increases proposed by the Association of Railway Executives do not meet with commendation by the presidents of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railways, it is reported. A heavy increase will be vigorously fought by Northwest shippers.

To keep fit and to know that you are in good physical shape is something which every person should take care of, and about the only way in which this can be brought about is through annual medical examinations.

"MURDER AT EAGLE'S NEST"

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

The murder of Baroness von Trent at Eagle's Nest, Emily Hardy's country home is discovered by a young Police Chief. After Vance through a mysterious phone call, Emily's butler receives a note from the Baroness. The shawl of Mary Frost, a guest, is found on the body. Her husband, Ted, was engaged to the Baroness. Mary's statement of returning to Eagle's Nest, alone, for the shawl, at midnight, and seeing it on Laura Millicent, is discounted by information that both she and Ted arrived home together at 4 A. M. Laura claims Mary was wearing the shawl in the garden. "Bim" Martin, young newspaper reporter and fiancee of Vance, sees the butler fleeing and is puzzled. Later, she learns that the Baroness was married to Belle, noted dancer. A pair of pearls is found on the roof and a uniform, similar to the strip of blue discovered near the body, is unearthed in the cellar. "Bim" says that the Baroness' maid wears large shoes though other girls' are petite. "Bim" discovers the tire tracks on Trent's car correspond with tracks found on an unused road near Eagle's Nest. Millicent Trent spies on her. Bob Trent resents a snub the Baroness had given his wife. Mary Frost is jealous of Ted. She warns "Bim" against giving up Vance for Carey, the New York reporter. While "Bim" is with Mary, Millicent calls. After she leaves, Ted misses his cigarette lighter.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

"I'm not," Imogene announced flatly, "going to stay at Eagle's Nest! I hadn't anything to do with the old murder and you got no right to keep me there. That's what I came to tell you! I'm going!"
"Sit down, Imogene," Walter smiled at the girl and Bim felt at once as if she would like to slap the pert face. "What," he went on after he had placed a chair and held it politely while the maid spread her ruffles till she looked like a telephone doll, "seems to be the trouble?"
"The place is haunted!" Imogene flung out. Then, seeing that he was about to laugh, "I suppose that's funny! Well, you wouldn't think so if you had to sleep up there over the room where SHE was. There's things going on, I tell you, and I'm not going to stay. I'm a decent, hard-working girl, I am, and there's things I won't stand for nobody."

Strange Disclosure

"We don't think it's funny," Walter said reassuringly. "Tell us what you've seen, Imogene. We'll do all we can to help you, you know."

"I don't want help! I want to get out. Well, I haven't seen nothing, but I've heard plenty. There's noises in the dressing room at night. It's a pounding, kind of, not very loud. Around midnight."

making the noise in the dressing-room is no ghost; you can bank on that. This all you know about it?"
"It's all except that I'm quitting. I'm through," I told Mrs. Hardy and she said I'd have to see you. So here I am."

Walter considered while Bim watched, a plan forming in her mind. She would have suggested it at once but for Walter's new stand-offishness, but now she plucked up courage when the pause lengthened and he seemed lost in thought while the maid waited.

A Man's Job

"Why not let me help with this?" Bim's voice was almost timid but it brought Walter's eyes to her in a startled way.

"What I thought," she continued, "was that I could arrange to spend the night at Eagle's Nest. Nobody'd think anything of it. I've been there often, you know. I'll have Em give me a room in the west wing and then Imogene and I can just change over. When the noise begins I can sneak down and see what it's all about."

Walter objected positively and at once. "This is a man's job, Bim. I won't have you taking the risk."

She thrilled to the realization that his stand-offishness was only surface, deep after all. But this did not prevent her urging the point.

"A man couldn't get away with it, Walter. He'd be spotted at once and nothing would happen. Besides there isn't any risk. I want to help you with this," she finished half pleadingly.

In the end he promised to think it over. "Anyway you can't leave Imogene," he told the maid. Don't try; the trains and buses and ferry all are watched. Nothing's going to hurt you."

The maid scowled but said nothing. After a moment he went on, "Anything else you want to tell? Something new you've remembered?" And when she did not answer at once, "All right, let's have it. Now or later, you know; I have the truth this time."

"Well—I don't know. You won't tell I said anything?"
"There's liable to be a lot of telling if you hold out, young lady."

"Yes, well . . . It's about Miss Allan when she went out on the terrace that night . . ."

"Yes? What about her?"

"Well, it kind of slipped my mind at first. But I was thinking it over and I remembered she met someone out there. They walked into the garden, out toward the summer house. They weren't gone long and when they came back Miss Allan was crying. I guess you don't care about that, though."

"Who was Miss Allan with out there? No holding out, remember."

"I'm not holding out. I ain't sure who it was she met, but it was Mr. Frost that came back with her."

Here was a new and astonishing development in the mystery surrounding the murder at Eagle's Nest and one which caused Walter Vance to look grim.

He dismissed Imogene kindly, telling her that she would be well protected from ghosts and such. But once the door closed upon her, he assured Bim that rougher methods would be in order.

"I don't say that this crowd—Frost and the Allan girl and the rest of them—know who shot the Baroness. But there has been too much underhandedness; nobody's told a straightforward story as yet. From now on they'll loosen up or I'll run them in as material witnesses."

It looked to me," he finished, "as if nearly everybody had been keeping dates that wouldn't stand looking at."

Bim recounted her discoveries in a quiet, depressed way. They seemed of no great importance to her, excepting that everything suddenly had become significant. And then she telephoned her plans to Em Hardy and was invited to move into Eagle's Nest at once and remain as long as she liked.

"Em, at least, holds nothing back," she observed. "What do you think about the noise, Walter?"

"Maybe some amateur sleuth at work. Or maybe some bold soul looking for plunder. Provided, of course, that Imogene really heard anything. Eagle's Nest is a bad place for nerves right now; it's a bad place for you."

"I'm not afraid."

"That's because you don't know what it's all about." He took a little pistol from the desk drawer and, after examining it, made her slip it into her handbag. "Don't use it unless you have to," he directed tersely.

She did not wish to take the thing and held her bag gingerly. "I'm more scared of the gun than of anything else. Please, Walter—"

But he said that he was busy, and began to finger a stack of records and Bim went away feeling let down and blue. Oddly enough the prospect of a brilliant career in New York with the debonaire Mr. Carey to assist her on the way to fame and fortune held no allurements at the moment. And all the way up toward Dr. there danced before her eyes a vision of Walter as he looked sitting there at the desk, remote and uninterested and shut away from her. She sighed and wondered what life would be like without him in it.

Em Hardy, at Bim's request, gave her a room on the third floor, in the west wing which looked over the ravine and the garden. Imogene's room was down the corridor a little way; it would be quite easy to exchange with her secretly. After she had settled herself here and looked about at it, Bim went for a walk up the mountain, stopping for a moment to speak to Millicent who was at work in her garden.

Bob was improving, Millicent said, though she was careful not to disturb him with any references to the murder.

Law and Justice

"Why don't they let the three drop, Bim?" the little woman cried. "What good does the stirring up do?"

"But there's the law, Millicent. Justice, you know."

"Oh—justice! We were so happy and peaceful here till she came. It isn't right for one person—somebody none of us knew and who cared no more for us than we cared for her—to make all this trouble. She had no right," Millicent walked. "To come here and bring all this on us!"

Bim sauntered on up the mountain and on impulse turned in at Bunny Baird's driveway. She found him lounging on his veranda, a huge ash-tray piled with cigarettes ends at his elbow, gazing into the evergreen branches above his head.

He motioned her to a seat without getting up and she regarded him a while in a silence which he broke at length as he lit another cigarette.

"I've been giving thought to the murder, my dear. Too bad."

"Murder is always too bad, Bunny."

"Not necessarily," he observed rather dreamily. "After all, the woman was of small consequence. But it's too bad the thing can't be allowed to die as it stands."

Millicent's sentiment repeated. Bim reflected. She offered to the artist the same logic which had failed to convince Bob Trent's wife.

ST. LOUIS, NEW YORK STRUGGLE FOR 1st PLACE IN NATIONAL SECOND DIVISION CLUBS TROUNCING THREE LEADERS

MARGIN OF .004 PERCENTAGE IS THE GAP BETWEEN THEM

CHICAGO ADVANCES TO WITHIN HALF A GAME OF THE BOSTON TEAM

ST. LOUIS IN 6-RUN RALLY, 8TH INNING, WINS 11 TO 9 OVER THE PIRATES

By LEO H. PETERSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, May 27.—The struggle between St. Louis and New York for first place in the National League, overshadowed for a time by the winning streak of the Philadelphia Athletics, continued today with the 1930 pennant winners holding a margin of .004 percentage points.

Actually, however, the Giants are a half a game ahead of St. Louis, but because the Cardinals have lost one less contest they have a higher average. New York has won 21 and lost 9 games while the Cardinals have won 19 while losing eight for percentages of .700 and .704, respectively.

New York gained a half a game yesterday by defeating the third place Boston Braves in both ends of a double-header while St. Louis was winning from Pittsburgh. Carl Hubbell allowed only two hits in shutting out Boston, 3 to 0, in the first contest, while Bill Walker shut out the Braves in the second game with eight hits, 6 to 0.

A six-run rally in the eighth inning after the Pirates had gone into the lead gave St. Louis a 11 to 9 decision over Pittsburgh. The Pirates came back for three more runs in the ninth but fell short of victory.

Chicago advanced to within a half a game of Boston by taking a double-header from Cincinnati, 7 to 2 and 9 to 6. Bob Smith held the Reds to eight hits in the first game while splendid relief pitching by Charlie Root enabled the Cubs to win the second. Root relieved Ed Baecht in the fourth after the Reds had tied the score and allowed but two hits during the remainder of the game.

Jim Elliott of Philadelphia defeated his old teammates, the Brooklyn Robins, for the fourth time this season, 8 to 4. Only two of the Phillies runs were earned, the others being due to errors by Finn and Thompson. The victory enabled Philadelphia to take fifth place, a half a game ahead of Pittsburgh.

Lefty Gomez and the New York Yankees finally broke the winning streak of the Philadelphia Athletics after it had extended to 17 straight games, 6 to 2. It was the longest winning streak recorded in the major leagues since 1916. Gomez held the Athletics to seven hits while his mates collected ten, including Babe Ruth's seventh home run of the season, off three Philadelphia hurlers. The victory enabled the Yankees to take second place, four and a half games behind the Athletics.

Washington's 6 to 4 defeat at the hands of Boston shoved the Senators down to third place. Jack Russell registered his third consecutive triumph over Washington, while Jones, Senator hurler, was touched for 13 hits.

Cleveland took a double-header from St. Louis, 12 to 2 and 4 to 2. Miller allowed only seven hits in the first contest while in the second Harder yielded but six blows as his mates were bunting the nine hits allowed by Collins and Kinsley.

George Uhl pitched and batted the Detroit Tigers to a 4 to 2 triumph over Chicago. His home run in the fourth inning with a mate on base gave Detroit the winning margin. The veteran Red Faber started for the White Sox but gave way to Braxton in the fifth.

CITY LEAGUE BALL STARTS JUNE 15; FOUR TEAMS IN

ONLY BRAINERD PLAYERS WILL BE ELIGIBLE; PERFECT PLANS NEXT MONDAY

NORTHEAST, SOUTHSIDE, SOUTH-EAST AND Y. M. C. A. ENTERED IN LEAGUE

At a meeting held Monday evening by a group of baseball men, plans were made tentatively to start the city baseball league about June 15, with four teams in the league, namely the Northeast, Southside, Southeast and the Y. M. C. A.

A meeting is called for next Monday evening at the Y. M. C. A. at which time rosters of teams are to be turned in and plans perfected for the starting of the league. The schedule will start in conjunction with the diamondball schedule Tuesdays and Thursdays being baseball days.

All prospective new players and the old players are to be lined up with one of the four teams, and players are asked to get in touch with one of the four managers. At present they are: Marvin Nutting, S. S.; Ray Fredstrom, S. E.; Frank Jarboe, N. E.; and Lester Peterson for the Y. M. C. A. It was the contention of those present at the meeting that there was no reason why anyone with fair playing ability should hesitate to join one of the teams, especially many young men who have been too young in previous years to play in the league.

With the exception of possibly finances being a problem, it was felt that prospects for a league were better this year than it has been for some time. There is an optimistic feeling in the matter of co-operation which is necessary to the success of the league. Assistance has been offered from several sources in the way of equipment to start the schedule and it was felt that if fans would get behind the teams and assist in a fair way financially when the collection is taken at games, it would be possible to purchase the necessary materials such as baseballs, etc.

Only Brainerd players will be eligible to play and the whole motive of the league is only to provide a local schedule which will give all Brainerd players an opportunity to play and to provide entertainment for the scores of boys who are interested fans, as well as their parents. Considering all involved, it is some of the most reasonable entertainment that can be put on for two months of the summer.

By LEO H. PETERSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, May 27.—The struggle between St. Louis and New York for first place in the National League, overshadowed for a time by the winning streak of the Philadelphia Athletics, continued today with the 1930 pennant winners holding a margin of .004 percentage points.

Actually, however, the Giants are a half a game ahead of St. Louis, but because the Cardinals have lost one less contest they have a higher average. New York has won 21 and lost 9 games while the Cardinals have won 19 while losing eight for percentages of .700 and .704, respectively.

New York gained a half a game yesterday by defeating the third place Boston Braves in both ends of a double-header while St. Louis was winning from Pittsburgh. Carl Hubbell allowed only two hits in shutting out Boston, 3 to 0, in the first contest, while Bill Walker shut out the Braves in the second game with eight hits, 6 to 0.

A six-run rally in the eighth inning after the Pirates had gone into the lead gave St. Louis a 11 to 9 decision over Pittsburgh. The Pirates came back for three more runs in the ninth but fell short of victory.

Chicago advanced to within a half a game of Boston by taking a double-header from Cincinnati, 7 to 2 and 9 to 6. Bob Smith held the Reds to eight hits in the first game while splendid relief pitching by Charlie Root enabled the Cubs to win the second. Root relieved Ed Baecht in the fourth after the Reds had tied the score and allowed but two hits during the remainder of the game.

Jim Elliott of Philadelphia defeated his old teammates, the Brooklyn Robins, for the fourth time this season, 8 to 4. Only two of the Phillies runs were earned, the others being due to errors by Finn and Thompson. The victory enabled Philadelphia to take fifth place, a half a game ahead of Pittsburgh.

Lefty Gomez and the New York Yankees finally broke the winning streak of the Philadelphia Athletics after it had extended to 17 straight games, 6 to 2. It was the longest winning streak recorded in the major leagues since 1916. Gomez held the Athletics to seven hits while his mates collected ten, including Babe Ruth's seventh home run of the season, off three Philadelphia hurlers. The victory enabled the Yankees to take second place, four and a half games behind the Athletics.

Washington's 6 to 4 defeat at the hands of Boston showed the Senators down to third place. Jack Russell registered his third consecutive triumph over Washington, while Jones, Senator hurler, was touched for 13 hits.

Cleveland took a double-header from St. Louis, 12 to 2 and 4 to 2. Miller allowed only seven hits in the first contest while in the second Harder yielded but six blows as his mates were bunting the nine hits allowed by Collins and Kinsley.

George Uhle pitched and batted the Detroit Tigers to a 4 to 2 triumph over Chicago. His home run in the fourth inning with a mate on base gave Detroit the winning margin. The veteran Red Faber started for the White Sox but gave way to Braxton in the fifth.

The Montgomery Ward kittenball

tions include Sheffo, hard hitting out-has also been turning in some good work with the stick.

With the revised lineup Manager
"Cannonball" Werner of Wards feels good investment.

You will find this combination in the Pontiac—that fine General Motors car. Thus, if it's a damp day when you first drive a Pontiac you will notice how snug and dry it is within the body. It's the same with heat, cold and traffic noise—because Pontiac's fine Fisher bodies are tightly insulated for your comfort and protection.

Appreciating the deep, form-fitting seats, you will note also the absence of road shocks and vibration. This is explained by four hydraulic shock absorbers and by rubber cushioning at 43 points in the chassis.

And when you first step inside the car you will be impressed by something out of the ordinary —genuine, long-wearing mohair or whipcord upholstery in the closed cars; fine leathers in open models.

Even though you feel that most cars have satisfactory motors, you will be surprised at the extra smoothness with which Pontiac's engine does its work. We have not forgotten that a car's first job is to get you somewhere, pleasantly.
As you drive you will admire the quick pick-up and power of the big, easy-working motor.
Immediately it will be clear to you why we are so proud of that engine.

Whatever you do—braking, clutching, swinging around corners—you will find you really enjoy driving this Pontiac.

Good looks? Modern smartness? We can leave the proof to remarks you will hear and the approving glances you will see as you drive about town or take friends to ride. (Bodies by Fisher.)

Possibly we are a little prejudiced—yet many Pontiac owners praise this car more than we would dare to. The values they have discovered will be clear to you once you have driven the Pontiac. Why not do that—soon! Any Oakland-Pontiac dealer will arrange a demonstration at your convenience.

GORILLA JONES IS SUSPENDED 6 MONTHS AND FINED $1,000

Chicago, May 27.—(U.P.)—Gorilla Jones, Akron, O., negro welter-weight, has been suspended for six months by the Illinois state athletic commission and fined $1,000 for his "poor showing" against Bucky Lawless, Syracuse, in a bout here Monday night. Lawless won the decision although floored for a count of nine in the fifth round. Jones claimed he injured his hand.

Crocodiles Victims of Their Own Bad Temper

Crocodiles have been endowed beyond other creatures with the gift of tears and are believed to find it a business asset. While the world has stood gaping at the spectacle of so tearful a reptile, the crocodile has gaped to greater purpose. Now, however, he is to lose the advantage of surprise and his tears will be a puzzle no longer, says the London Times. Imperial scientific research has found out something about crocodiles which it would be very decidedly worth their own while to know.

Researches carried on in Uganda have shown that crocodiles have a secret grief. They are very human in some ways and are inclined to sleep with their mouths open. There is nothing wrong so far, and if crocodiles pass most of their lives in a snooze nobody will complain. But it appears that the tsetse fly is addicted to walking around the open mouths of sleeping crocodiles and to biting the softer parts.

Crocodiles let this irritation master them and pay a terrible price for their bad temper. They snap their jaws and swallow the flies and with them the germ of the sleeping sickness. It is the old story of the lion and the mouse—that kindness, or at least forbearance, from the bigger beast pays in the long run.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 27.—Attorney General James M. Ogden today informed Judge Grant Crumpacker of Valparaiso that Virgil Kirkland's sentence in the Arlene Draves murder case should have been five to 21 years.

Ogden said he would start action unless the sentence of one to 10 years was changed to conform with statutes. Judge Crumpacker promised to investigate.

TWO CHARGED WITH ROOF PAPER THEFT

Held Over to District Court; Unable to Raise $5,000 Bonds Fixed by Court

The roll of roofing paper was valued at $10.

Its alleged theft from the home of Amanda Syreen at Irondale caused the arrest of Charles Isle and Everett Freeman, their arraignment in justice court at Ironton and their transfer to the county jail when they failed to raise $5,000 bonds.

The two will be arraigned before Judge B. F. Wright in district court early next month.

6 Persons Killed and 11 Injured in Moscow Wreck

Moscow, May 27.—(U.P.)—Six were killed and 11 injured today when an engine and three passenger cars on the Moscow-Sotchi express was derailed 95 miles south of Rostov. A rail had been removed for repairs. It was alleged that the watchman at Leushkovskaya station failed to warn the engineer of the train.

LEGION WINS IN RACE FOR MEMBERS

Auxiliary Provides Close Competition; Both Report Substantial Gains

The national membership race between the American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary closed May 15 with the Legion in first place, finishing with 11.73 percent of its 1931 quota enrolled, while the Auxiliary had 91.05 percent. Both made substantial membership gains during the contest.

On May 15 the Auxiliary had a national enrollment of 365,302 less than 8,000 below the highest membership record. The Legion's enrollment was 928,689, far higher than its best previous record. Twelve state departments of the Auxiliary have exceeded their 1931 membership quotas, and eight departments have exceeded their highest 1930 enrollment. Minnesota is among the eight.

There was a large increase in poppy orders from the Auxiliary units this year, which has meant additional employment for the disabled men who make the poppies. Hundreds of veterans who are unable to do other work of any kind, have been given employment for months making poppies for the Auxiliary in government hospitals and in poppy work rooms maintained by the Auxiliary. It is hoped that an even greater number will be employed making these poppies in 1932.

The work of the Auxiliary in cooperation with President Hoover's emergency committee for employment, has received a personal expression of thanks from the president. In a letter to Mrs. Robert Lincoln Hoyal, national Auxiliary president, he said: "I appreciate very warmly what you and the members of the American Legion Auxiliary have done in cooperation with the president's emergency committee for employment. This work has been of the greatest social value besides its obvious humanitarian aspects. I will be obliged if you will convey to your associates my cordial thanks."

SEEK EXTRADITION OF MAN HELD AS GEORGE W. E. PERRY

Eagle River, Wis., May 27.—(U.P.)—Sheriff William McGregor, Sr., of Vilas county and Houston W. Parker, Lac du Flambeau resort operator, were en route to San Francisco today with a extradition warrant for return of a man held there as George W. E. Perry, bigamist and accused slayer of Mrs. Cora Belle Hackett-Perry.

Houston accompanied the sheriff to remove any doubt as to the identity of the prisoner who has steadily maintained he is Frank J. Moran. Parker became intimately acquainted with Perry and his bride when the couple honeymooned at his resort last summer.

TWO CHARGED WITH ROOF PAPER THEFT

Held Over to District Court; Unable to Raise $5,000 Bonds Fixed by Court

The roll of roofing paper was valued at $10. Its alleged theft from the home of Amanda Syreen at Irondale caused the arrest of Charles Isle and Everett Freeman, their arraignment in justice court at Ironton and their transfer to the county jail when they failed to raise $5,000 bonds.

6 Persons Killed and 11 Injured in Moscow Wreck

Moscow, May 27.—(UP)—Six were killed and 11 injured today when an engine and three passenger cars on the Moscow-Sotchi express was derailed 95 miles south of Rostov. ## LEGION WINS IN RACE FOR MEMBERS

Auxiliary Provides Close Competition: Both Report Substantial Gains

The national membership race between the American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary closed May 15 with the Legion in first place, finishing with 111.73 percent of its 1931 quota enrolled, while the Auxiliary had 91.05 percent. Both made substantial membership gains during the contest.

On May 15 the Auxiliary had a national enrollment of 365,302 less than $,000 below the highest membership record. The Legion's enrollment was 928,689, far higher than its best previous record. Twelve state departments of the Auxiliary have exceeded their 1931 membership quotas, and eight departments have exceeded their highest 1930 enrollment. Minnesota is among the eight.

There was a large increase in poppy orders from the Auxiliary units this year, which has meant additional employment for the disabled men who make the poppies. Hundreds of veterans who are unable to do other work of any kind, have been given employment for months making poppies for the Auxiliary in government hospitals and in poppy work rooms maintained by the Auxiliary. It is hoped that an even greater number will be employed making these poppies in 1932.

The work of the Auxiliary in cooperation with President Hoover's emergency committee for employment, has received a personal expression of thanks from the president. In a letter to Mrs. Robert Lincoln Hoyal, national Auxiliary president, he said: "I appreciate very warmly what you and the members of the American Legion Auxiliary have done in cooperation with the president's emergency committee for employment. This work has been of the greatest social value besides its obvious humanitarian aspects. I will be obliged if you will convey to your associates my cordial thanks."

DEAD SCIENTISTS

THOUGHT FLYING BALLOON

meters (35,424 feet) was set by Professors Person and Suering in July, 1901.

A stiff breeze carried the Piccard balloon westward for a short distance as it moved into the air. Higher currents, however, shifted its course almost directly south.

Professor Piccard apparently was not worried over the fact the ascent was his 13th effort to reach the stratosphere, the unexplored upper region of the earth's atmospheric insulation. His balloon has a capacity of 14,000 cubic meters.

The bag was not covered with the usual network, reducing the weight to only 800 kilograms. Piccard hoped to reach an altitude of 50,000 feet, or nearly ten miles.

Beneath swung the gondola, an airtight aluminum compartment equipped with a maze of observation instruments and connected with the outer air by small tubes. Two small observation slits permitted the scientist to view the world—or air—about him.

The only entrances to the aluminum compartment were two small doors, or manholes, in the smooth surface of the shining car.

Professor Piccard was enclosed in the 6-foot aluminum undercarriage. He waved farewell to his assistants who have aided him in preparations this spring, and the great bag rose quickly. The balloon was especially constructed for the venture. It has a diameter of 30 meters. The spherical gondola was scientifically equipped with instruments to measure cosmic radiation and ionization of air. It also has an electro-meter and highly sensitive photographic apparatus. Oxygen cylinders and oxygen in liquid form were stored in the car for the occupant.

The temperature of the gondola is regulated by sunrays. It is divided externally into two hemispheres, one of which is painted a dark color and the other left unpainted. The car can be turned with a screw, and if the temperature falls too low the painted side can be turned toward the sun's rays. If it becomes too hot inside, the unpainted wall of the carriage is turned toward the sun and the heat diminishes.

The ascent was made purely for scientific purposes. It is not an altitude record breaking attempt, Piccard emphasized. The attempt is backed by a national fund for scientific research.

First Emperor of Brazil
 Pedro, son of King Joao VI of Portugal, who was left in Brazil as regent when his father returned to Lisbon in 1821, was proclaimed first emperor of Brazil on October 12 of the following year. King Joao VI recognized the independence of Brazil in 1825.

Napoleon Made Careful Study of Art of War

Napoleon's coup d'oeil and the lightning flash of his genius is well known, but there was far more in his campaigns than coup d'oeil or the most brilliant of improvisation. It was the result—the result of genius in systematizing data—of long and painful study not merely of the technicalities of his profession, but of its "divine parts," of which he found details in the theoretical work of his predecessors and in the campaigns of those who alone are his rivals. There was, as Professor Wilkinson shows, nothing miraculous about that first campaign. Napoleon's own special gifts amounted to genius, especially his comprehension of men and his swift grasp of the art of war was the result of long study and meditation. Before he was in command in Italy he had written the memorandum that forms the basis of his campaign, a memorandum which laid down the conditions of success and was derived from a study of earlier campaigns, of political history, of the map and of manuals like Bourcet's. His own special scheme of a frontal attack combined with a turning movement was deduced completely before it was applied. His campaigns are applied doctrine, and nearly all the doctrine he had worked out in his head before he attained supreme command in the field.—Manchester (Eng.) Guardian.

DEAD SCIENTISTS

THOUGHT FLYING BALLOON

meters (35,424 feet) was set by Professors Berson and Suering in July, 1901.

A stiff breeze carried the Picard balloon westward for a short distance as it moved into the air. Higher currents, however, shifted its course almost directly south.

Professor Picard apparently was not worried over the fact the ascent was his 13th effort to reach the stratosphere, the unexplored upper region of the earth's atmospheric insulation. His balloon has a capacity of 14,000 cubic meters.

The bag was not covered with the usual network, reducing the weight to only 800 kilograms. Picard hoped to reach an altitude of 50,000 feet, or nearly ten miles.

Beneath swung the gondola, an airtight aluminum compartment equipped with a maze of observation instruments and connected with the outer air by small tubes. Two small observation slits permitted the scientist to view the world—or air—about him.

The only entrances to the aluminum compartment were two small doors, or manholes, in the smooth surface of the shining car.

Professor Picard was enclosed in the 6-foot aluminum undercarriage. He waved farewell to his assistants who have aided him in preparations this spring, and the great bag rose quickly. The balloon was especially constructed for the venture. It has a diameter of 30 meters. The spherical gondola was scientifically equipped with instruments to measure cosmic radiation and ionization of air. It also has an electro-meter and highly sensitive photographic apparatus. Oxygen cylinders and oxygen in liquid form were stored in the car for the occupant.

The temperature of the gondola is regulated by sunrays. It is divided externally into two hemispheres, one of which is painted a dark color and the other left unpainted. The car can be turned by a screw, and if the temperature falls too low the sun's rays. If it becomes too hot inside, the unpainted wall of the carriage is turned toward the sun and the heat diminishes.

The ascent was made purely for scientific purposes. It is not an altitude record breaking attempt, Picard emphasized. The attempt is backed by a national fund for scientific research.

Napoleon Made Careful Study of Art of War

Napoleon's coup d'oeil and the lightning flash of his genius is well known, but there was far more in his campaigns than coup d'oeil or the most brilliant of improvisation. It was the result—the result of genius in systematizing data—of long and painful study not merely of the technicalities of his profession, but of its "divine parts," of which he found details in the theoretical work of his predecessors and in the campaigns of those who alone are his rivals. There was, as Professor Wilkinson shows, nothing miraculous about that first campaign. Napoleon's own special gifts amounted to genius, especially his comprehension of men and his swift decision, but his peculiar grasp of the art of war was the result of long study and meditation. Before he was in command in Italy he had written the memorandum that forms the basis of his campaign, a memorandum which laid down the conditions of success and was derived from a study of earlier campaigns, of political history, of the map and of manuals like Bourcet's. His own special scheme of a frontal attack combined with a turning movement was deduced completely before it was applied. His campaigns are applied doctrine, and nearly all the doctrine he had worked out in his head before he attained supreme command in the field.—Manchester (Eng.) Guardian.
